SALSON'S BAD RECORD

Shah's Assassin's Full History Known.

Once Attempted to Murder M. Casimir-Perier.

Date Set for Humbert's Funeral—Anarchists' Movements.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—(By Atlantic Cable.)

Today's inquiries have cleared the entire history of Francois Salson, the would-be assassin of the Shah of Persia.

Salson's record was most complete. After the death of his father he resigned from the army and began a career of crime.

During the inquiry Salson related that he once made an effort to assassinate the former President of the French Republic.

He hid in the shrubbery beside the road that Casimir-Perier was accustomed to take in his daily walks.

Salson's hatred of M. Casimir-Perier, he asserted, was due to the latter's association with the late President of the French Republic.

He admitted that he pulled the trigger of his pistol at the time of his attack upon the Shah, but in this case again the weapon failed.

Salson's last employer stated that he was a model workman; that he never was in any difficulty with his employers.

A special dispatch received here today from Madrid says that the Spanish government has decided to arrest Salson.

adding to the cost of the improvement which will be about $14,000, is opposed by the proposition that the street be widened to 30 feet. If any street is to be widened, it should be Center street, for Monterey street is a dead end. The improvement is authorized if it will cost only in the nothing back of the money that is now being paid on the side of the road, as the estimated cost does not provide for grading and for the widening of the street. It is pointed out as an example of what is done for other city streets should be done for this street should the widening proposition be adopted. The street was widened some years ago, and yet is unimproved.

It is not known whether the widening of the street are property owners will be required and come for widening back their property. The street, moving buildings, and putting the street on the same of their property. It is not known whether the property owners there are, as they think the improvement will be worth all the money that will be expended on the improvement, but there are many who think they cannot afford to pay as much as the improvement would cost. It is estimated that the annual tax levy for an improvement which they claim does

AVERY CYCLES

"ALL LOOK ALIKE."

McNutt Joins County Democrats.

Ex-Senator White Suppresses the Noisy "Insurrectos."

Merry Matinee of Los Angeles County Democratic Central Committee.

The Democratic County Central Committee had a jolly matinee yesterday morning in Turner's Hall, and although actual hostilities were not precipitated there was squabbling a plenty between the leaders of the various factions.

It is known that there has been organized a club which presents itself as the "reformer" in the Democratic ranks. According to the tenets of this new club, as heralded in a proclamation sent broadcast over Los Angeles county, "the some sections of the city of Los Angeles the accused and primaries of our party have recently been conducted in such a manner as to discourage all honest Democrats. Decent citizens have been ignored, and rascals and worthless characters and designing agents and employees of private interests have supplanted them."

Thus read the declaration of war issued by the "allied forces of reform" against the "treacherous Bureau of Los Angeles Democracy," to quote one of the leading "reformers." Whereat the "push" girded its strong arm about itself and prepared for the fray. The day afforded the first opportunity for the rivals to test their fighting blarney and the "reformers" and "Harvey" cried, but the dogs of war did not quite stir.

It was largely because of the commanding force of ex-Senator Stephen M. White, who arose from a sick bed to attend the meeting. That distinguished Democratic leader has been stricken with paralysis, but he was on his feet yesterday to present certain plans for the campaign to a State Central Committee which was expected, for twice he had to take the floor and speak. The "reformers" were screaming defiance to each other from all parts of the hall. More than once the "reformers" and "Harvey" cried, but the dogs of war did not quite stir.

Dr. R. W. Hill, chairman of the committee called for order at 10:15 o'clock. Seventy-six delegates were present in person, and fifty-one were represented by proxy. The meeting was presided over by the chairman, who was a square-jawed, middle-aged man, with a white mustache and a white hair. He was a member of the committee, and he was a member of the committee. He was a member of the committee, and he was a member of the committee.

ALL DEMOCRATS LOOK ALIKE.

Twenty-five votes or major fraction thereof cast for the Bryan electors in 1900. It will give a convention of 67 delegates.

The above details may read very much like a piece of fiction, but they are not. They are the facts of the Democratic County Central Committee meeting yesterday morning. The "reformers" and "Harvey" cried, but the dogs of war did not quite stir.

ALL DEMOCRATS LOOK ALIKE TO HIM.

It is strange how much Democrats look alike. They have the same open countenances. [From Judge McNutt's speech.]

offered by different individuals. In one case an excited delegate who held one of these duplicate proxies, proclaimed that the one held by "the other fellow" was a forgery, and stated vehemently that he could prove his assertion. Such little diversions were frequent.

THE PARTY LEADERS.

Ex-United States Senator White and ex-State Senator Del Valle represented the State Central Committee. Together with T. O. Toland, the two leaders mentioned constitute the subcommittee of the State Committee, which will manage the coming campaign in the Sixth Congress District.

Both gentlemen spoke, outlining the plan of campaign. Their committee is empowered to raise funds, attend to the registration and naturalization of voters, organize clubs in every precinct in the Congress district, and to distribute literature.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CONVENTION.

Primaries to elect delegates to the Los Angeles County Democratic Convention will be held in the county precincts on Saturday, August 12, from 7 to 9 o'clock p.m. The city primaries will be held on Friday, August 11, from 7 to 9 o'clock p.m. It was decided yesterday to hold the county convention at least one week after the Republican convention is held. The date of the Democratic county convention has been named.

The date does not conflict with the resolution to meet a week after the Republican convention is held.

The date of the county convention was fixed at one week after the Republican convention and one delegate for each on the Atlantic or Pacific Slope, and you will not find a millionaire among them. [Applause.]

"Now a few weeks ago we decided to form a Democratic club on the old time lines. The idea has spread abroad that we were forming for a factional fight, but that is not so. We are here today asking that the coming primaries be safeguarded." And then the speaker offered a set of resolutions prepared by the Central Club.

George S. Patton, the warrior bold from the shades of the San Gabriel Mission, first spoke, and he informed the resolutions. Then Earl Rogers, who appeared for the first time in many months as an active Bryanite, occupying a seat in the committee by virtue of a proxy, arose and expounded some opposition to the proposed resolutions.

Joseph Simmons, the Pasadena brick masher, next expounded on the beauties of a caucus. He said: "Now there's no fair man who object to holdin' a caucus. We hold sometimes of our party in politics, but there are schemers who crowd some men into our conventions who are not Democrats, but are allies of the Republican party and we want to stop that by putting decent men in charge of our primaries."

"Now I move," said Rogers, "that this homily on purity in politics that has been offered by Mr. McNutt be filed away in our sacred archives and that thanks be extended to the Stevenson Club for its good advice."

What the "push" yelled with delight, while the "reformers" bestowed their sneers and prepared to fight.

S. J. Adams, who seemed to be a place in the national Congress, arose at this important moment and began to deliver a primer lesson.

Democracy always stands for pure politics," he said, but got no further with his platitudes, for the air was so thick with the smoke of the debate that the Democrats' caucus was hurried down.

WANTED HARMONY.

Rogers' sarcastic motion was met with a roar of laughter and a few more words.

Although the "push" seemed to have it, Chairman Hill ruled the other way.

Then, confounding Rogers for the "push," he thought it best to make the "reformers" again.

But the end was not yet, for from the rear of the hall came George S. Patton, with shoulders squared for the combat and eyes flashing.

"We want harmony," he shouted, "but if we must fight for decency we will do so. We will not permit the chairmen of this meeting to make such snap rulings. There is a crowd in the rear of this room that took part in the voting on this question, and not one is a member of this committee. We demand a roll call. We will not allow a resolution to be killed without a fight."

Excited delegates from the country were shouting the decision to call a caucus. The "push" was shouting in glee, and the "reformers" were shouting in anger. The "push" was shouting in glee, and the "reformers" were shouting in anger.

law for law's sake. He obeys the law because it costs good money not to obey them.

They used to have a system of "doling out" the small portions for whom they had grades. They would anchor their horses in front of his stall and for all the custom he could get, he would have to wait for the stall.

Later in the morning when the stall was practically deserted, the chain gang was brought out from the City Jail under command of E. B. Felt to police the grounds. It is easy to see how the vegetable peddler's fruit might make the place a veritable paradise.

THE PATHOS OF IT.
They have assistants, these convict scavengers—assistants as pitiful as "The Cleaners." In the early morning hours, before the daylight is out of its full glare, there come women with sacks and little carts to pick the refuse thrown away from the fruit wagons.

Two of them are young girls, and there seems to be about half a dozen of a story. They are not like the others.
Somewhere there is a hint of better days by the soft glances of their eyes and the dreamy depths of their mouths.

They carry a gunny sack between them, and they walk about among the wagons, fruitfully, yet there is a certain haughty in their bearing, as though they were the lords of the refuse.

It is a pest who is not so much a peddler as a pest. For the vegetable peddler is a pest who

Some of the Week's Diversions at Long Beach, and Humors

"Watch the kids down at the beach; Par babies are doing parents' heads; See them dive and swim about; Hear them kick when ordered out. Passive mindless, full of glee, Floundering in their necked water, Fat man rolls in like a log; Puffs and paddles as he dog. Everybody full of vim. Everybody in the swim!"

One of the most popular reports of the Pacific Coast is Lamy Beach.

"Why, it's just the nicest one of all the beaches," declared a feminine hatter who had accompanied her friends to the strand and scooped out a "wallop" to rest and rest and watch the antics of those who were hanging in the surf today; now, no more.

And gasping for breath from the effects of a wave of unusual height, which completely submerged them. "Such beautiful stretch of beach," she added.

"How clean everything seems, and how lovely the other."

TERMINAL ISLAND

"I bet so, too. So'd you 'f yours was here."
"All right, come on," and away the two little rascals went, pellmell into the water, whooping like a couple of little Apache Indians.
THE "ANTI-WATER BRIGADE."
Another class who frequent the beach are those who "can't see for the life of me what fun there is going in the water and getting soaked and sossled, and wetting one's hair and getting it full of salt, and making a fool of one's self generally," as they term it.
This class of folk prefer to take a big umbrella, a sofa pillow, a steamer chair and the latest novel, and sit on the beach whiling away the hours reading or dreaming. They are as regular in their attendance at the water's edge every day as are the bathers, and though they pretend to read or take a nap, if you will observe them closely you will notice a rather half "fish-i-wo-in-there-fo" expression come into their faces as they seemingly look across to the surface and took the bait. What went the line through the fisherman's hands with such swiftness that a red streak was burned inside his palms, as the savage creature swam seaward with incredible swiftness, and the line whipped through the water as fast as a bow string.

"He's coming in again!" came the cry from the excited crowd.
Apparently the shark knew just how to rid himself of such a petty nuisance as a barracuda hook, for it swam in toward the pier and around the same easily as though it were a cotton thread and making off with the second hook in its mouth.
At this juncture the steamer bell rang, and the disappointed fishermen were obliged to leave their game until another time.
"Wait until we come down on the afternoon run, and I'll have something that will make him think he's run up against the real thing," said the engineer, as the steamer steamed away for Long Beach.

LONG BEACH SOCIETY.
COLONISTS AND PICKNICKERS.
LONG BEACH, Aug. 4.—[Regular Correspondence.] E. D. Foster and his mother, Mrs. Mary Foster of Norwalk, entertained a picnic party at the pavilion at Long Beach Thursday. The guests were Miss Ina Parker of Pasadena, Miss Ray Sibille of Pasadena, Mrs. E. J. Hill and daughter, Miss Laura Hill, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. SANTA MONICA.
WEDDINGS AND PERSONALS.
SANTA MONICA, Aug. 4.—[Regular Correspondence.] Miss Frances Alata Carrillo, daughter of ex-Treasurer J. J. Carrillo of Santa Monica, and A. H. Calkins of Sherman were married Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride on Second street. The house decorations were elaborate and beautiful. Palma, potted ferns and tropical foliage were arranged in the reception hall, pink lilacs and ferns in the parlor, and ferns and white carnations and roses in the dining room. The bride wore a handsome gown of white tulle with a train, and a crown of white orchids. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and maidenhair ferns. She was attended by her sister, Miss Eliza Carrillo, who wore a gown of yellow organdy over silk. L. J. Quint of Sherman acted as best man. Rev. Father Haugh, assisted by the Klaus Orchestra, officiated. The bride was given away by her father. The wedding music was furnished by the Klaus Orchestra. After the service an elaborate supper was served, after which the bride and groom left for a short trip. Mr. and Mrs. Calkins will be at home after August 15 in their new home at Sherman. The bride has been one of the most prominent young society ladies in Santa Monica, and the groom for two years occupies a government position at Huntington, The BATTLE WITH A SHARK. And Other Lively Episodes at the Shore.

Some of the Week's Diversions at Long Beach and Terminal.

Watch the kids down at the beach! Far beyond their parent's reach: See them dive and swim about; Hear them kick when ordered out. Plucky maiden, full of glee, Flung in quite recklessly. The man rolls in like a log; Truth and puddle a la dog. Everybody full of vim; Everybody in the swim!
One of the most popular resorts of the Pacific Coast is Long Beach. "Why, it's just the nicest one of all the beaches," declared a feminine bather to her companion, as they lolled on the sand and scooped out a "swallow" tub to rest and watch the antics of those who were hanging to the safety rope, now "riding the breakers," and now gasping for breath from the effects of waves of unusual height, which would completely submerge them. "Such a beautiful stretch of beach," she declared, "how clean everything seems, and how fresh the air."
"Yes, and if it wasn't for those awful camera fends it would be lovely. There's one now, Sun, taking his horrid kodak right at us."

Let's turn our backs on the mean thing."
"All right, let's,"
Yes, the kodak man is in evidence at Long Beach—very much in evidence, to the discomfort of some, and the delight of others. While there are cases like the former, there are others, where some grinning feminine bather, upon perceiving the camera head looking for a snap shot, will rush up and exclaim:
"Oh, do take a picture of us, won't you, please—just a family group? Come here, Tommy—and call Willie, and Myrtle, and oh, won't you be so kind as to wait until I can get stater and mother and the twins—they do look so cunning in their little bathing suits."
And the poor camera man mounts his tripod as near the incoming waves as he dares, while the grinning daniel gathers about her in the water, the twins and sister and mother and Tommy and Willie, and several others who claim a place in the picture. After his feet have been thoroughly soaked by the waves gliding in while his head was under the dark cloth, he gets the proper focus and snaps the shutter, and instead of hearing, "Thank you, I'll take a dozen—cabinet size," he is rewarded with, "Oh, dear! I wonder whether or not they will be good for anything? Do you really think so? Well, I'll take a couple, if you are sure they are going to be all right."

HER FIRST DIP.
Then there is the faint-hearted young lady who has never taken a plunge in the ocean. She dons her bathing rig, which, judging from its elaborate manufacture, was never intended to be soaked with salt water, and timidly tiptoes down to the beach with her secret.
"Oh, Jack! I'm afraid to go in," she gasps. "Just see how rough it is today. I knew I should be frightened to death."
But "Jack" only laughs and says: "Nonsense! Why, you'll never learn to swim on dry land."
"I know it, but don't you think we'd better wait until it's smoother. I—oh—oh—! How c-c-cold it is! Now, don't you pull me along one bit!"

"There's no danger. Why, what are you afraid of? Hal hal hal!" for the timorous creature rushes shrieking toward the beach, as a great breaker, with a boom and a roar, dashes in, flinging a shower of foam over the intrepid Jack, and then rushes high up on the beach.
"Oh, Jack! Do come out, please do!"
"Now, see here, Ella; don't be so foolish. Try it again. Here, let me take your arm. There, now you see it isn't half bad. Here comes another big breaker. Now—so, I'm not going to let you run this time—you let me show you! There! Wasn't that all right?"
For the incoming wave lifted both high in the air, while "Ella" gave vent to a succession of little feminine shrieks.
"O-o-o-oh! Jack! Wasn't that just lovely. Why, this is just fine. Let's try another," and so it goes until full confidence has been restored, and within a week "Ella" can daily be seen away out at the end of the safety line.

THE CHILDREN.
Probably no class enjoys "old ocean's" arms more than the children, and especially the smaller they are the greater is their manifestation of delight. Little bits of three and four years, attired in a bathing outfit, "like papa's" or "mama's," and with a watchful papa as guardian, are hourly seen sporting in the water—pretty close in shore, of course—but the little shavers of 10 and 12 can, many of them, equal their elders in "shooting the breakers." Two diminutive shapes of about this age, while playing "turtles" in the sand, gave the following dialogue:
"Say, Jimmie, fast you go clear out to the end of the rope!"
"Now, you darsen't, either."
"Darsen't, too. Went clear out alone yis, 'day when pa wasn't lookin'!"
"Aw, go on! I bet you didn't."
"Hope to die I did."
"Let's try it now."
"All right! I'll stamp you to."
"G'pooes! Your pa sees us way out there. I bet you'd git it."

It isn't for lack of fishermen that all the fish at the end of the pier at Long Beach haven't been caught. Go out there any day and you can count a hundred lines in the water, so close together that each fisherman is continually getting his or her line snagged with their neighbors. Small boys and girls vie with old, gray-headed men in the piscatorial art, and the fish stories one can hear from the lips of some of these veterans would send a chill down the spine of a young fisherman.
The fish taken are small—mostly surf fish, but the interest is not in the size of the catch, but in the skill of the fisherman. The fish are small, mostly surf fish, but the interest is not in the size of the catch, but in the skill of the fisherman. The fish are small, mostly surf fish, but the interest is not in the size of the catch, but in the skill of the fisherman.
But at Terminal Island the latter part of last week there were fish stories, and true ones, which would thrill the pulses of any man who ever played a five-pound trout on a six-ounce line.
For several days three large sharks of the species known as the "blue shark" were seen in the water—very close to the pier, and in fact, they were seen sport in the water at the end of the long wharf. Several times the fish were held out to capture them, but until Thursday morning they declined to bite at all the tempting lures which were held out.
When the little pleasure steamer Meteor came down from Long Beach on its morning run, the engineer brought along a couple of large barracuda hooks and some shark bait. One of the hooks was properly rigged and cast far out into the ocean. The water at the end of the pier is about fifteen feet deep, and the hook, with its tempting bait had hardly struck the water when there arose to the surface a huge shark nearly ten feet in length. Rolling over on its side the big fish greedily gulped down the bait and hook.
"By George! You've got him!" yelled one excited spectator, as the line tightened.
"Look out—stand back! He's coming in!" roared the excited engineer.
Finding itself fast the shark swam furiously toward the wharf and around one of the pier supports a couple of times, then—snap! went the line and away went the monster—followed by several chortling spectators.
"Say, ain't he an old lunker, though?" exclaimed Capt. Ryus to his engineer.
"You bet! but we'll get him yet," said the engineer, as he hurriedly rigged up the other hook and line.
This was baited and tossed out. In a short time the big shark again leaped to the surface and took the bait. What went the line through the fisherman's hands with such swiftness that a red streak was burned inside his palms, as the savage creature swam seaward with incredible swiftness, and the line whipped through the water as fast as a bow string.

"He's coming in again!" came the cry from the excited crowd.
Apparently the shark knew just how to rid himself of such a petty nuisance as a barracuda hook, for it swam in toward the pier and around the same easily as though it were a cotton thread and making off with the second hook in its mouth.
At this juncture the steamer bell rang, and the disappointed fishermen were obliged to leave their game until another time.
"Wait until we come down on the afternoon run, and I'll have something that will make him think he's run up against the real thing," said the engineer, as the steamer steamed away for Long Beach.

A ROYAL RATTLE.
It sank slowly out of sight, then suddenly the line tightened.
"He's on again!" yelled the engineer, dashing about the wharf like a crazy man, as the line whizzed through his hands, and the big fish, finding itself fast, started off in the direction of Catalina.
"Stand back!" roared the man with the harpoon to the excited crowd, who pressed so close to the edge of the pier that many were in danger of being pushed off. "Give me a chance at him! Pull him in, Harry!"
The engineer slowly drew in the line, but the huge shark raced up and down like a streak of lightning, and there was nothing to do but let the old fellow have his own way.
Then the shark did something which caused everybody to utter their favorite slang phrase.
When close to the pier, and when it looked as though there was no chance of escape, the cunning creature suddenly dashed ahead with such swiftness that the engineer was almost pulled into the water.

"Pay out the line—quick!" shouted Capt. Ryus.
But the big fish went too fast. It reached the end of the line and snap! it went, while the old reprobate made off with bait, hook and chain fast in its mouth!
"Lost! Conhang it all!" groaned the disappointed engineer, and he's got my best shark hook down his gullet, too.
There are exciting times at Terminal Island in store for lovers of shark fishing during the next few days. Engineer Jamison declares he will yet capture "old junk shop," as the big shark has been dubbed.

Basket ball is perhaps the most popular game to rage from one end of the United States to the other. It was invented in 1891 by Dr. James Naismith, particularly for the Y.M.C.A. training school at Springfield, Mass.; and its popularity has been something marvelous. It is almost a universal game of children

Contrary to the comedy, the idler is neither a miser, nor the comically-astounded. It is seldom that a human being does anything without expecting some return. The idle tramp gets his mind fleetingly preoccupied with his hunger, and fills his soul with wistful dazy longing in the unobtrusive, half-serious, half-unconscious manner of the petty thief that dominates some brains and carries home a string of mad-cats like a cat's paw.

To the Wandering Blounger, as through the parks and streets, the vision comes and grows more majestic and more august. He is mankind's biggest dream man and he keeps his eyes open to see it free! How interesting would it be to hear him tell of his dream!

The dogpug, a black and white family, was bitten by a dog named Karl at Hotel Rossmore, alleges Patricia. Karl was severely bitten on January 15 of the present year by a vicious bull belonging to Fittering. She said the dog was kept in the hotel and had been in bed for three weeks at the time of the attack. Young Karl, who has the appearance of a large dog, was seen by Patricia on the corner of Figueroa and Pico streets, where he was riding a bicycle near the corner.
